

TRENTON YOUTH IS KILLED BY AUTO NEAR MORRISVILLE

John J. Miller, Jr., Aged 13, Was Riding Bicycle When Struck

DRIVER IS HELD

Two Lads Enroute to Homes From Yardley When Tragedy Occurs

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 13.—A Trenton youth, 13, was killed last night when struck by an automobile on the old Lincoln Highway, near this borough.

The dead: John J. Miller, Jr., 91 Oak Lane, Trenton, N. J.

Miller, the son of John J. and Mary E. Miller, was riding his bicycle towards Trenton about 5:30 and was struck by a car driven by Arnold Groobman, 23, 216 Buckingham avenue, Trenton. Groobman told police the bicycle was unlighted and that he did not see the rider until too late to avoid striking him.

Dr. James P. Lawler, deputy coroner, Bristol, said death was apparently instantaneous.

The boy was hurled to the ground, suffering multiple fractures and internal injuries. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Theodore R. Cohen, of Morrisville, who notified the coroner.

Miller was accompanied by a schoolmate, Robert Adams, of 60 Oak Lane, who said they were on their way home from Yardley when the mishap occurred. They were riding abreast, Adams told his family, with Miller on the traveled portion of the highway.

Groobman brought his car to a stop immediately, and after picking up the injured boy started for Trenton and a hospital. As he neared the approach to the Delaware River Bridge, the automobile skidded in the trolley tracks, punctured a tire and was damaged striking the curb.

Prior to the arrival of Dr. Cohen, Trenton police dispatched an ambulance to the scene in charge of Reserve Officer Smyth and Chauffeur Cobine. Adams escaped injury.

Groobman was arrested by Officer Charles Jones, of the Langhorne Motor Patrol, on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Arraigned before Recorder John Melvin, he was held under $2,000 bail.

The Miller boy was a student at Junior High School No. 3. In addition to his parents, he is survived by three brothers, Walter H., Charles I. and Forrest. Funeral arrangements are being completed by Poulson & Van Hise.

HEAR SECOND LECTURE ON FINGER-PRINTING

Chief Sakers Tells How Fingerprints Can Be Read and Made Useful

SOME GUESTS PRESENT

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 13.—Presenting the third in a series of lectures on finger printing identification, Chief W. Raymond Sakers, instructor at the Bucks County Police Academy at a meeting held Wednesday evening in the Court House, here, spoke to about 30 men, most of whom were minor law enforcement officers from all sections of the county.

Also present were B. Franklin Horner, President of Doylestown Borough Council; Dr. R. C. Magill, New Hope Burgess, and Sheriff-elect William L. Stackhouse, of Hulmeville.

Chief Sakers, speaking on plain and rolled impressions and how taken, said:

Impressions are taken in two ways, as "plain" and as "rolled" impressions. By "rolled" is meant the cylindrical projection of the pattern upon papers. To take a "rolled" impression, the bulb of the finger is placed upon a glass or metal slab over which a thin film of printer's ink has been spread, the place of the nail being at right angles to the plane of the slab, and the finger is then turned over until the bulb surface, which originally faced to the left, now faces to the right, the plane of the nail being again at right angles to the slab. By this means the ridge surface of the finger between the nail boundaries is inked, and by pressing it lightly upon paper in the same way that it was pressed upon the inked slab, a clear rolled impression of the finger surface is obtained.

Care must be taken not to press the finger too heavily on the inked slab or the paper, otherwise a blurred or imperfect impression will result. To obtain good impressions, the following details must receive attention: The slab in use should be free from dust, hairs, or other foreign matter. It should be thoroughly cleaned each day, all traces of the ink previously used being removed. A very small quantity of ink should be applied, and this should be worked up into the thinnest possible film; unless the film is thin, the impression obtained will not be clear and sharply defined. From a finger so inked a good impression is secured, as even additional pressure will not do much harm.

The paper used should be white and its surface not too highly glazed, for, unless it is sufficiently absorbent, nearly all the ink will remain on the finger, less adhering to the paper, the print resulting not being in consequence sufficiently dark. Stress is laid

WANTED TO BE A DICTATOR

By ALONZO B. SEE

The main thought of the men who formed our government was to prevent our country from having a dictator. To that end they gave us a free press, a Supreme Court and a Constitution.

Unfortunately for our country, Mr. Roosevelt, when he went to the White House, took Mussolini for his model and started in to make himself a dictator and to make the White House, Washington, D. C., his permanent residence. For this purpose he ordered Congress to take from the people the free press. This, Congress would have done but for the violent opposition of the people to having the freedom of the press taken away from them, for when the freedom of the press goes from a people the freedom of that people goes also.

Next Mr. Roosevelt ordered Congress to take from the people the Supreme Court. The opposition of the people to having their Supreme Court taken away from them made Congress afraid to obey Mr. Roosevelt in this matter also.

Then Mr. Roosevelt ordered Congress to take from the people the Constitution which has carried us safely through 150 years. This, Congress has so far been afraid to do.

Next Mr. Roosevelt ordered Congress to give him control of the money, with the result that Mr. Roosevelt bought, at an exorbitant price, gold the country did not need and has disturbed business by muddling money conditions.

If we had had in Congress such men as Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and Patrick Henry when Mr. Roosevelt asked to be given control of our money, they would have said the management of our money is of so vast importance that it should not be given to any man no matter how great his financial ability of which you have none.

This is a great manufacturing country and Mr. Roosevelt felt that he could advance his move to be a dictator if he got control of the industries, so he sent out his henchmen to "crack down" on the heads of men who managed the manufacturing plants. This is the cause of the unparalleled industrial disturbances that are now cursing our country.

Mr. Roosevelt has called a special session of Congress to meet November 15th, 1937, which will be only a few days before the regular session of Congress. This will waste two million dollars of the people's money. No matter what Mr. Roosevelt may say is the reason for calling this special session, the real reason is he hopes in this brief special session to cow Congress into making him more of a dictator than they have already made him.

A man going through an asylum for the mentally defective said to an inmate, "Who are you?" The inmate answered, "the King of England." A few days later the man asked this inmate who he was and the inmate answered "The King of Belgium."

Mr. Roosevelt has been described as the most dependable man in the United States, for no matter what he says one day, he can always be depended upon to do something different the next day.

Mr. Roosevelt promised the people that if they would elect him president he would reduce the cost of government 25%, but instead of reducing it he has added to the cost of government to an appalling degree.

Depressions come which means perhaps a slowing up of overproduction, then we go on to better times.

When Mr. Roosevelt went to the White House, business was on the upward move and hopefulness was everywhere present and if Mr. Roosevelt had stuck to the White House job and let business alone we should now have as good times as our country has ever had and all would be gainfully employed.

As Mr. Roosevelt attacks business men it occurred to me that it might not be amiss for me, a business man, to utter these few gentle words in our defense.

INITIAL INSTRUCTION IS HELD FOR B. H. S. BAND

Instruments Purchased Approximate 30; More May Be Added to Group

PLAN DEMONSTRATION

First instruction session for Bristol high school's band was held this week, the organization of the band having been conducted one month ago.

Instruments purchased by students on a time basis arrived on Friday, and boy and girl musicians were most anxious for their first instruction period.

The instruments, totaling approximately 30, include five clarinets, six saxophones, 10 trumpets and cornets, two drums, six horns and trombones. It is expected that other students playing band instruments will be added in about six weeks' time.

A competent instructor has been secured, for band members, and Mr. Quigley, of the high school faculty, will aid, particularly with the reeds.

Members of the faculty at Bristol high school expect a fine band for football games next Fall, and it is possible, it is announced, that the band may make its appearance during this school term. A concert demonstration of progress will occur in about five weeks, it is believed.

IMPATIENT DRIVERS CRASH R. R. GATES

296 Drivers Who "Wouldn't Wait" Sent Cars Through Railroad Gates

PLAN DEMONSTRATION

HARRISBURG, Nov. 13.—The driver who "wouldn't wait" sent 296 automobiles and trucks into and through lowered gates at railroad crossings in Pennsylvania in the first eight months of 1937.

In addition to wrecking gates, motorists damaged or destroyed 12 flashing light signals and in one case ran into a crossing watchman's box.

These figures are from reports received by the accident section of the Public Utility Commission. In 285 of the accidents there was no contact between train or engine and motor vehicle.

Six automobiles were driven through lowered gates, and struck by train or engine. Four persons were injured. Five automobiles were driven through lowered gates, and into the side of engine or train. Six persons were injured.

Thirteen automobiles were driven into the side of engine or train standing on crossings. Six persons were injured. The report also shows 112 automobiles driven into the side of engine or train moving over crossings resulting in six persons killed and 66 injured.

Thirty-four automobiles stalled on crossings, and were struck by train or engine. Two persons were killed and four injured. Twenty-one automobiles were struck by the tender of engine or by cars being backed over crossings. Nine persons were injured.

GIVES HER CONCEPTION OF A MODEL SCHOOL

Bristol High Student Tells of Advancement of Society

THROUGH EDUCATION

(One of a series of essays by Bristol high school students written in connection with National Education Week.)

"MY CONCEPTION OF A MODEL SCHOOL"

By Catherine M. Colgan

We must begin to realize that the advancement of education means the advancement of society. They are related, and one depends upon the other for success. Therefore, the time has come to understand that our public school is the one institution that should be improved.

The seven objectives of education should be considered individually. I think that the following will aid in developing these seven important factors.

HEALTH: I feel that on this subject the school should function similarly to an ideal healthful community. In some respects this has been accomplished but much is yet to be done.

I. There should be a principal office standing as the Board of Health in a community. An experienced nurse should be at the head of this division.

II. Health should be a required subject for all students.

III. Students should be encouraged to participate in selective sports that would be an asset to health.

IV. Lectures on health and its importance should play some part in our assembly programs.

V. First Aid should be taught under the instruction of the School Board of Health. At this office any student injured or in need of this service should be attended to.

VI. Once every half-year each student should be summoned to the main office for a thorough physical examination. Any additional health records or information about students should be kept on file.

SCHOOL DISPLAY CREATES CONSIDERABLE INTEREST

Charts Show How the Dollar is Spent for Educational Purposes

IS VIEWED BY MANY

The general theme of the display arranged by Bristol high school classes and eighth grade and placed in the window of Fabian's store, Radcliffe and Mulberry streets, this week, is "Education and Our National Life." In addition to charts, skillfully executed, there are posters drawing attention to National Education Week which is now being celebrated, and showing how the school and home are linked.

Books used by local public school classes in various subjects, such as health, Latin, French, English, science, mathematics, commercial work, history, etc., are displayed; and the Constitution of the United States as well the subject of this portion of the window display being "The School and the Constitution."

The first chart shows the percentages of the expense dollar used for various purposes in operation of Bristol public schools. For instruction, 68 cents; operation, 10; debt service, 8; capital outlay, 3; auxiliary agencies, 2; general control, 3; fixed charges, 3; maintenance, 3.

Two other charts compare figures for operating Bristol's public schools with those for a town of comparable size in New York state, Bristol having a larger portion to spend on actual instruction.

In the third chart showing a comparison of state and federal appropriations in 12 states, Pennsylvania is shown to be 10th on the list, with a greater amount coming from local funds than in the nine preceding states.

"BRITANNY AND NORMANDY"

LANGHORNE, Nov. 13.—Mrs. George Phaele, wife of Dr. George Phaele, Philadelphia, who is famous for her travelogues, will speak before members of Langhorne Sorosis on Tuesday, her subject being "Brittany and Normandy." This program will be for benefit of the International Relations Committee, and will be conducted in the library. The public is invited.

MAKING PROGRESS ON NEW THEATRE BEING BUILT HERE

Structure at Radcliffe and Market Streets About Ready for Roof

TO OPEN DECEMBER 31ST

To Augment Crew of Workmen, Next Week, and Rush Job to Completion

One of the two theaters proposed to be built in Bristol is rapidly taking form and it will be a few days before the structure is roofed in. All that has been done thus far on the second proposed building is to drill for water to be used in the cooling system.

The theater being constructed by James Egnal and which is to be managed by his son, Nathan L. Egnal, is located at Radcliffe and Market streets. The four walls are almost completed. They are of cinder block and the structure is heavily re-inforced with steel. "We expect to have the building closed-in next week," said Mr. Egnal.

After the building is "closed-in" then it is planned to put a big crew of workmen on the job and rush the building to completion. "We are planning to open on New Year's eve," states the management.

The policy of the management is to conduct the theater in the most modern manner. Two major pictures, newsreel, and a comedy, making a three-hour show, is to be the program. The new house will seat approximately 800 people with standing room for 300 more.

The name of the new theater is to be "Bristol."

Morrisville Wants Bus To Improve The Service

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 13.—Because the Richmond Bus Company, operating the transportation lines between here and Trenton, is only running every other bus north on Delmorr avenue to Trenton avenue, a petition was filed with Common Council by residents of the North Delmorr avenue section, asking that this condition be remedied. After the matter was thoroughly discussed, Council voted to request the bus company to operate its buses so that all of them would travel on North Delmorr avenue and that the route be alternated.

Councilman Griffith submitted an estimate for repairs to the borough hall which he reported was about $225. This will include papering the first and second floors, scraping and varnishing the floors, painting the woodwork inside and outside, repairs to the windows and erecting a cabinet in the tax office. Bids will be asked for and the work will then proceed and the committee has been authorized to have the work done.

The police reported $316.50 in fines for the past month and 12 arrests made. Six of the arrests were for overloaded trucks which netted $300 in fines. A check for $325 was received from the county treasurer as the borough's share of the local beer license. The county treasurer, in his letter, reserved the right to collect these fees. The law was changed at the last session of the State Legislature placing the issuance of license in the hands of the State Liquor Board instead of with the County Court, and it has not yet been determined whether there has been any change as to where the fees were to go.

Judge Refuses Motion Of Four For A New Trial

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 13.—A motion for a new trial sought by Michael Namet, Michael Namet, Jr., Gustave Avella and William Truckess, Bristol Township, was refused this week by Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

The quartet had been charged with liquor law violations, being convicted in the criminal court of Bucks county two months ago, following a raid on a farm. A huge still and quantity of liquor was seized at that time.

It has been directed by the court that the defendants appear for sentence at a later date.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer sentenced Peter Jones, 35 Turpine street, Trenton, N. J., to serve 30 days to one year in the Bucks County Prison on a charge of driving while drunk. The sentence is to be dated from October 16th.

Andrew Snyder, Newtown RD., was before the Court on a charge of non-support brought by his wife, Dorothy. He was directed to pay $4 a week toward her support.

James Persichillo, Bristol, was sentenced to serve 6 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison, on a charge of malicious mischief. The sentence was imposed by Judge Boyer.

NO UNEMPLOYMENT

There is a considerable element in the United States which is alarmed because there continue to be several million unemployed men and women in this country who are dependent upon government generosity for their very existence.

This is of course a deplorable situation and one which everyone hopes will soon be remedied by an upsurge in business which will make private employment available for them.

But a glance at some other countries leaves one with the thought that things could be worse—much worse—for the Nation and for those unemployed. Today they are either engaged in various work-relief projects, or on straight relief.

Not one of them is engaged in destructive activities that bring death to men, women and children and appalling destruction to the property of others.

In many other parts of the world the opposite is true. There men are engaged in the degrading work of killing other human beings or of getting ready to kill them. There is no unemployment in the militaristic nations today. Factories are humming as never before, turning out engines of death and ammunition for them. Hundreds of thousands of men are on foreign soil, invading the homelands of other peoples, killing and destroying. For them there is no unemployment.

When an American surveys the map of the world today and sees how the unemployment problem has been met in the dictator nations, he is convinced that it is possible for employment to be worse than unemployment.

AVOIDANCE OF WAR

Immediately upon his return to Washington, Senator Van Nuys of Indiana declared that opposition to participation by the United States in any foreign war is uppermost in the minds of midwesterners. Mr. Van Nuys was speaking of, and perhaps for, that portion of the country with which he is most familiar. He might, however, have said the same thing for the whole country.

For himself, he declared: "I shall never countenance any legislation which may, even in a remote way, lead us into another foreign war. I belong to that wing of the Senate which is for peace almost at any price."

The Democratic senator from Indiana is in a position to make his opposition effectively felt. He is a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, of which he says "it looks as though the committee will have a busy session."

Assurances of the sort given by Senator Van Nuys are very much to the point at this time when once again the United States is being led into conferences concerning international action affecting an existing war far from our shores. President Roosevelt's assertion that this government will enter that conference free from all commitments is felt by many not wholly to cover the ground.

There is great anxiety as to whether the United States will exit from that conference still free from commitments.

"Beauty's A Charm" by HARRIET HINSDALE

CHAPTER XXVIII

Cleaving their way through the good-natured crowd in wedge formation, came a number of newspapermen who had been washed from their positions by the uncontrollable sea of humanity sweeping past guard lines onto the landing field. They clambered over and into the automobiles which by now were making slow and cautious progress through the cheering crowd toward the nearest highway. Questions were hurled at the returned heroes like bombs. Out of their fragmentary replies was woven the story of their remarkable adventure.

Lucy Lee heard it first as did countless other listeners-in, almost as soon as it fell from the lips of the adventurers themselves. "Ladies and gentlemen, we are delighted to bring to you first authentic radio news of the astounding return to life and civilization of Bruce Loring, noted motion-picture star, and his companion Clyde Dixon."

"These two intrepid travelers of the air, as you know, took off from a Los Angeles airport some weeks ago in Mr. Loring's specially designed amphibian plane on its maiden voyage of any length. Their destination was the Mexican state of Durango, a hunter's paradise where big game of various species abounded, from grizzly bear to mountain sheep."

"But off the coast of Lower California Loring's plane ran into an unexpected storm which blew them far off their route and subjected the ship to a terrific atmospheric battering. Engine trouble developed and a forced landing was necessary."

"Darkness obscured their view of the terrain below. Suddenly the ship burst into flames, no doubt from a leaky gasoline line. There was no escape from a fearful death by fire but to abandon the plane and trust their lives to parachutes. Bruce Loring and Clyde Dixon took the perilous leap into the unknown—and after drifting for a considerable time, they landed safely but at widely separated points."

"Loring found himself floating in the Pacific not far from a small island off the shores of Mexico. While Dixon, carried farther along, came down on the far side of the island."

"Loring, being a powerful swimmer, managed to reach the shore, although almost exhausted. It was not until several days later that the two men, each believing himself to be the sole survivor, found one another again—the only human beings upon that rocky and rarely visited island!"

"The story of their weeks of isolation and eventual rescue by Mexican fishermen, is a truly startling one. This station has already contracted for the appearance on its program of Clyde Dixon who, beginning tomorrow evening at eight o'clock, will tell the story of his adventures. Continuing each night at the same hour for two weeks, in a fifteen-minute talk giving all details of his life and that of Bruce Loring while marooned on the island and given up for dead by the world. Be sure to tune in on what will be the most startling true-to-life adventure story in the air, and on land and sea, ever released."

"This is Station KJH and your announcer is William Delaney."

As the cars bearing the returned adventurers proceeded from the landing field toward the Beverly Hills home of Bruce Loring, they were followed by hundreds of other automobiles in a parade blocks long and constantly growing longer.

Horns tooted deafeningly, passers-by cheered, more machines joined the procession and added the tooting of their horns to the din.

Loring and Dixon, requested to sit on the turned-back tops of their cars as on thrones, smiled and waved in response to the cheering crowds. "Grim at them, Clyde—take your bows. Give, boy, give! See that blonde cutie throwing kisses at you?" Don Ames yelled excitedly. "Boy, is she a whizzy little number!"

"Where?" Clyde turned, searched the sea of faces.

"Right there—in the red, white and blue get-up. She looks like a sweetheart of the army and navy both! Give her the business, you big boob!"

Although the mass of staring faces swam indistinctly before his eyes and the blonde cutie was as vague as the rest, Clyde waved and shouted: "Hello," in the general direction indicated. The crowd roared and someone threw a small bunch of flowers toward the car. Clyde, on his seat of vantage, caught it expertly and again there was a shout of approval from the mob.

All the rest of the way, flowers were tossed until the two cars were piled with blossoms like triumphal chariots bearing conquering heroes. Several times when traffic jams forced the slowly moving machines to stop at some intersection, pretty girls jumped on the running boards and imprinted hasty kisses on the sun-browned faces of the two men.

"Oh, migosh," Clyde exclaimed in dismay at the first of these encounters, his bronzed skin turning a deep crimson with embarrassment. But after the second girl had thrown her arms about his neck he did not dodge but took her kiss fairly on the mouth, amid wild shouts of approval from the delighted on-lookers.

"Attaboy, Clyde!" "Don't be bashful, Big Boy." "Whoopie!" "You're learning fast," grinned Ames. "When you get tired of kissing 'em, turn a few over to me. Look at Loring, he's chucking 'em. They're hanging on him like he was a Christmas tree. And boy, does he kiss 'em! Plenty of kisses there, I'll say. When he foesses 'em—they stay kissed! Wait, I've got an idea."

The publicity man leaped from the car and running forward, jumped on the running board of the Loring machine. Clyde saw him talking earnestly for a few moments to the star, who at first shook his dark, sleek head in denial; then, breaking into a great, boyish laugh, nodded approval. Ames came back, smiling broadly.

Loring turned and shouted something to Clyde who, however, could not catch it because of the bedlam of bellowing horns.

"What did he say?"

"He said it was Jake with him. I sold him the idea of taking this parade up Hollywood Boulevard from Vine to Highland instead of going straight home. My God, look at it—a million dollar publicity—even a guy like Loring can't get too much publicity. And wow! What a break for you. Did you see all the newsreel boys planted along the line back at the landing field?"

"No... were they? Newsreels—?"

"Sure. The whole world will know your handsome pan by this time tomorrow."

"Good Lord!" Clyde smoothed his hair with a nervous gesture. "What kind of a haircut did they give me down in Aqua Caliente? Bruce and I looked like a couple of Tarzans when we landed there. First thing he asked for was a barber and about a thousand dollars worth of ham and eggs."

"What in the name of reducing diets did you two eat on that island of yours?" Ames asked. "You both look kinda thin."

"Clams and fish, mostly. Abalone. Stuff like that."

"Raw?"

"No, we cooked 'em. I had a watertight case of matches in my pocket and we kept a fire burning night and day. To cook on—hot stones, you know—and for a signal. That's what finally brought the Mexican fishermen who took us off. They hardly ever land on that island. But they saw the smoke."

"Thus in broken snatches, Ames got his first account of the amazing story for which the world waited with breathless interest. A tale which he was destined to present in many forms—over the radio, in magazine articles and through newspaper syndicates. All of course signed and supposedly written by Clyde Dixon."

At last it was over. The escorting machines dropped away until there were comparatively few left to bring the parade to its close at the Loring home, a dignified Monterey-type house on one of the palm-lined avenues of Beverly Hills. Loring shook hands solemnly with his companion in adventure, winking prodigiously with his off eye. The one away from the grinding cameras of the newsreel photographers.

"See you tonight, Old Timer," he said.

They were to meet again that night at the huge official banquet of welcome at the Ambassador, being arranged by the studio executives in honor of their star's spectacular return.

"Where do we go from here?" Clyde asked and he and Don Ames got into their car again. "Look! There's still a bunch of machines following us."

"Let 'em follow, bless their little hearts. It's good for business. We're going to the hotel. Your headquarters."

"What d'you mean, my headquarters?"

"The place where you sign contracts," Ames grinned. "I've got your radio tie-up all arranged and some vaudeville people are waiting to offer you a thousand bucks a week for personal appearances and—"

"Thousand dollars a week!" exclaimed Clyde.

"Yeah, but we can boost it to fifteen hundred, easy. Then there are the syndicate articles—your endorsements of everything from clam juice to the kind of garters you like best. Oh, we oughta be able to promote from three to four grand a week out of it without much trouble."

"Say, are you crazy, or am I? Three or four thousand—my eye!"

"You've gotta learn to think in big figures, boy. This is only a starter. We'll probably get fifty to seventy-five grand out of the picture."

"What picture?"

"The one you and Bruce Loring are gonna make, of course. You don't suppose those Great Minds in the N. P. N. outfit would miss a chance to cash in on a break like this, do you? They've got about twenty of their crack scenario hounds at work on a story already."

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—How should motion picture stars invest their money? The question bothers every celebrity and has been intensified during the recent antics of the stock market.

Peter Lorre has a novel answer. For 10 years he has been buying up the screen rights of European novels and plays until now he has accumulated 13 valuable properties. It was Lorre to whom British-Gaumont had to come when it wanted to film Joseph Conrad's "Secret Agent". The Hungarian actor also holds the rights to "The Good Soldier" and "Schweik" and "Kasper Hauser".

Best part of it is, in every one of the stories there is a part for Lorre.

Whether he is finished in "Jezebel" or not, Henry Fonda will leave for New York not later than Dec. 14. Star made Warners agree to this before accepting the role. Reason is the Fonda heir is due Dec. 15.

News story of Danielle Darrieux' arrival reported the star as bringing 47 trunks of Paris clothes. It is typical of Hollywood, however, that the actress' wardrobe in her Universal picture, "The Rage of Paris", will be entirely of studio manufacture.

Recent spreads in the picture magazines in which some of Hollywood's most dignified stars were seen disporting in bathing suits has caused many a shudder among the cinema great. Which may or may not be responsible for the fact that it is very hard these days to get an established actress to pose for what is known as "leg art".

Among those banning the bathing suit pictures are Jeanette MacDonald, Wendy Barrie, Frances Langford, Fay Wray, Patricia Wilder and (since her marriage) Anne Shirley.

Will Rogers would have been 53 years old Nov. 3. His bungalow at Twentieth Century-Fox has been left unchanged by Eddie Cantor and on the anniversary, the comedian placed a bouquet of roses on the desk where Rogers wrote

I. I feel that high school grades should not cease to learn the experience and value of reading, writing, and spelling.

III. A Debating Club, which will give students the power to express their ideas on useful topics, problems, and various discussions of life and its happenings should be formed.

WORTHY HOME MEMBERSHIP

I. Appreciation for what our parents have done for us in order that we might secure a useful education should be in the mind of every student. Teachers should constantly remind students of this.

II. If every student would realize the many sacrifices his parents have done to secure his education, and if he is appreciative of this, he will strive to do likewise for the next generation.

VOCATION

I. As many vocations and fields of work as possible should be taught in the public schools. Many of these should be Home Economics, Manual Training, Art, Music, Sewing, and possibly others. However, they should be selective, and not compulsory to students.

(a) For those who really wish to learn music and have experience in it, there should be a school band. Because this has now been proposed in our school, all students should stand behind this movement and work for its success.

(b) For others, one hour a week should be devoted for the students to either study about a vocation or do work concerning it.

II. Pamphlets on how to select vocations and how to go about taking them up should be accessible to every student. Students should also be encouraged to ask advice on how to choose their vocations.

CITIZENSHIP

This is one objective of public school education that should be greatly enforced.

I. There should be a 15 minute period, every day, dedicated to the advancement of citizenship only. This period should be used for the reading of the Bible, and saluting of the flag in a manner which expresses its meaning. Other classroom duties and practices should come after we have paid our respects to our country and religion. If this cannot be done, a special period should be arranged for them.

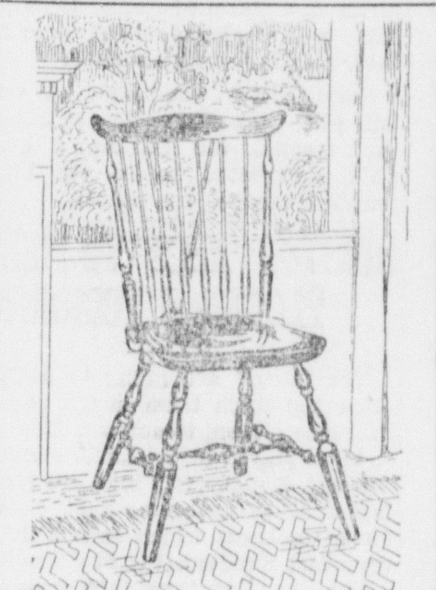

II. Students should be encouraged to listen to any national hymns and to appreciate their meanings. Patriotism, not in the form seen in Germany, Italy, and other European countries, but a new desire of their own to protect their country should be in the mind of all students, for they will form the future citizens and protectors of our country.

WORTHY USE OF LEISURE

Leisure time should be spent doing something useful but enjoyable.

Various clubs should be formed and pupils encouraged to join them and work for their success.

BENSALEM VICTORIOUS OVER LANGHORNE

By Louis Tomlinson
LANGHORNE, Nov. 13.—In one of the biggest scholastic grid upsets of the current season, coach George Reimer's Bensalem Owls rose up to down a mighty Red Raider eleven in a driving rain that swept the field all afternoon. The final score was 7-6.

Captain and fullback, Hal Robinson was directly responsible for his team's first win of the season. Hal took the second half kick-off on his own 15 yard line and proceeded to race the full 55 yards through the entire six points that tied the score for the six points that Robinson ran down the right side line behind excellent interference formed by his teammates, then as he reached the mid-field marker, he cut in toward the center, and behind a three man interference he galloped the rest of the distance unopposed. In fact many a Red-skin touched the feet fullback of Reimer's Owls.

The vital extra point which ultimately resulted in victory and defeat was annexed through the medium of a fake kick with Joe Cahill hitting the line over the center to score standing up.

Coach Br. k's boys counted their touchdowns in the second half as a direct result of a sensational kick by the Red Raiders ace back and signal caller, Chuck Klein, who did a wonderful job of booting his team out of danger consistently all afternoon and keeping the Owls on the defense much of the time. Klein booted a 40 yard kick late in the second period that bounced out of bounds on the six-inch line.

Hal Robinson dropped back deep in his end zone immediately to kick out of danger but was unsuccessful. His boot went almost straight up in the air as he hurried it off and it finally bounced out of bounds on his own eight yard line. From here Ralph Newbold, converted tackle, scrambled 7 yards on the first play to rest the oval on the one yard line from which point he hit the center of the Owls' line on the following play to plunge over for the six pointer. Chuck Klein's attempt to convert the extra point went wide but Bensalem was offside so he received another chance. However, the Owls flocked in upon him to block the second attempt and to finally block the way for their victory.

The game was marked with a triple result. It marked the first defeat in six starts for the big Red Wave, and at the same time it netted the Owls their first triumph of the current season. The Redskins had won three, tied two and lost none heretofore, whereas the Owls had taken six consecutive setbacks on the nose before achieving their initial victory for the 1937 campaign.

The third result was that Bensalem moved up from the cellar to third place ahead of Bristol in the Lower Bucks Conference standings and that opened the door to the basement for the Red Raiders who promptly fell into the cellar and are now holding up the league ladder.

The line-ups:
Bensalem (7) Langhorne (6)
McGovern center Miller
Bauer right guard Corrigan
Marshall right tackle Delessandro
Tettermer right end Reid
J. Scarborough (Capt.) Klein
Cahill right halfback Bisphan
Robinson fullback Carney

Bensalem 0 6 7 0-6
Langhorne 0 0 0 0-6
Touchdowns: Langhorne, Newbold; Bensalem, Robinson. Point after touchdown: Cahill (back), Substitutions: Bensalem, Chapman for McGovern, B. Scarborough for Whyte, Despo for Getz, Langhorne, Harding, Hastings, Gamble, Nemes, Wagner.
Referee: Morgan, Bloomsburg. Umpire: Horst, F. & M. Time of periods: 12 minutes.

California's Big Bear

By BURNLEY

California's 1937 "Wonder Team" boasts of several all-American candidates, not the least of which is the towering center, Big Bob Herwig. This 6-foot 4-inch, 210-pound Hercules is an all-around athlete of the first water. He is highly proficient in five sports, baseball, basketball, track, swimming and, of course, football.

Speaking only of his gridiron talents, it's no secret that the Golden Bears' pivot is the best center on the coast.

On the defense, he is a raging terror. By actual count, Herwig made 60 per cent of his team's tackles in a recent game.

Big, rangy and fast, he is an ideal type of roving center. Bob is so versatile that Coach Stub Allison insists that he would be just as great as an end or fullback.

The legend is that he can toss a football 90 yards when in the mood. Herwig doesn't need to hire a press agent. His wife writes stories for a coast paper, so Robert is sure to get a big build-up in that sheet, regardless.

This is Man Mountain Bob's third straight year as California's regular center, and this year coast boosters say he can't miss all-American recognition.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN TO CLASH WITH BURLINGTON MONDAY IN THE "LITTLE BROWN JUG" GRID SERIES

The football game between Bristol and Burlington high schools eleven, scheduled to be played here today, was postponed shortly before noon today. The game will be played Monday at 2:45. The postponement was announced by David Hertzler, high school principal, and Mr. Hertzler stated that weather conditions were such that the game had been called off until Monday afternoon at 2:45.

With the local Fathers' Association behind the Cardinals 100%, and much of the town support with the game, the tilt has drawn more attention this year than ever before. This has risen the importance of the game as the leading home contest this Fall.

Of course the Little Brown Jug which is the sacred souvenir of the battle is one of the outstanding features of the struggle as the two teams battle for possession of the ancient jug emblematic of victory and retained in the winner's hands, for at least another year.

Since the renewal of the current series back in 1935 the Cardinals haven't been able to upset the Burls in any of the four games played thus far, but this year they present their highest hopes of winning back the jug which they lost in 1935. Burlington won the last game before the relations between the two schools was broken off. Therefore, when it was renewed by Coach Dougherty in 1935, the Burls retained possession of the jug which was instituted as a souvenir of the tilt through the pair of ties of 0-0 and 6-6 in 1933-34. However, when Bristol won 14-6 on the home field in 1935, the latter won the right to hold the jug which they successfully defended on the Burlington lot last year with a sensational 19-6 win.

Burlington once more is represented with a great grid aggregation and come here Monday with a record of a quartet of wins and a pair of setbacks but no ties in six games. They have counted 61 points to their opponents' 31. Among the Burls' notable achievements is a 15-12 win scored over the Blue and Gold of Morrisville which has proven itself a great machine this year. This strength shown by the visitors appears to give them an edge on the Cardinals whose scoring punch has been lax in the last three tilts in which Bristol of course failed to score a single point. Of course the Burls seek revenge over Bristol for the two consecutive setbacks handed them by the Red and Gray eleven and it is their hope to humble the home folks and to return jubilantly with the Little Brown Jug in their possession once more.

Bristol, on the other hand, has suffered two straight setbacks and are due to come back strong at the expense of the big Blue and White outfit Monday. The Cardinals are playing on the home field which means a lot to them and if given a break in this game they should cop the verdict in a thriller for once they get a lead it will be hard for the visitors to get through the Cardinals' staunch forward wall.

Moreover the local aggregation has the hopes of supplying a bit of cheerfulness to their beloved stellar tackle, Jesse Van Zant, who is confined to his home with a serious injury which will keep him on the sidelines throughout the remainder of the season.

ST. ANN'S GRIDDERS OUT TO WIN FOURTH GAME

The St. Ann's A. A. gridders will try for their fourth triumph of the season here tomorrow afternoon when they stack up against the strong Alco A. eleven, unbeaten team from South Philadelphia. The game will be played on St. Ann's field, Jefferson avenue and Garden street and the opening kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock sharp.

To date the Purple and Gold has won over Doylestown, Carlisle and Morrisville. It has been beaten by Burlington, Diason and Sellersville. It is now in its home stretch and will finish the season by playing Alco, Andalusia, Bristol "Rees" and Lambertville. Andalusia will be played next Sunday and the "Rees" on Thanksgiving Day.

Coach "Bill" Dougherty is undecided as to whom he will start in the Alco fray. "Teddie" Tosti, "Bill" Firman and "Henny" Kornstedt are nursing injuries and can not be expected to see much action. With Firman out, Dougherty may have to depend on "Sage" Sagolla to do the punting as this was Firman's main act.

With Tosti on the side lines, it leaves five backs ready for action. They are: "Sage" Sagolla, "Tony" Orazi, Ray Pieo, "Ozzie" Bono, and "Sammy" Ross. "Tom" Proffy's hip is well again and so he will start one of the guard positions with "Carm" Gantlatto sure of a tackle post. The remainder of the line-up will be a toss-up.

ANDALUSIA ELEVEN TO TRY FOR 7TH STRAIGHT

The Andalusia Green Jackets will attempt to make it seven straight tomorrow afternoon when it meets the Circle A. C. team of Philadelphia. The game will be played on the State Road field, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Next Sunday, the triple A eleven will play its banner game of the season, meeting the St. Ann's eleven. This is expected to be the biggest drawing card of the season.

BRISTOL "RECS" TO MEET FLORENCE TOMORROW

The "Rees" are going to meet another top-notch team in the powerful Florence eleven, tomorrow. The game is to be played in the latter's stadium.

Coach Dougherty's men are practicing hard to overcome that pass defense weakness which caused them to drop last Sunday's tilt at Glenside.

For the first time this season the Bristol club will have a full team ready for action with the returning of Johnny Pollock and Jules Zellerie.

The "Rees" will play St. Ann's at the high school on Thanksgiving afternoon, at two o'clock. Sunday's game will be played at R. D. Wood field in Florence, N. J. Last Sunday, Florence defeated Yardley, 19 to 6.

HUNDREDS WITNESS FLIGHT OF HAWKS

Cameras Replace Guns as Birds Cross Penna. Sanctuary

Harrisburg.—Sportsmen who do their "shooting" with cameras are having luck these days, brisk days on Hawk Mountain, near Lenhartsville, Berks county, the Pennsylvania State Publicity Commission reported today.

Founded three years ago, the Hawk Mountain Park is the only sanctuary in the world for birds of prey. It is one of the highest points of the Blue Mountain, along a favorite migratory route used by birds flying north or south.

The fall migration southward, far more spectacular than the spring flights northward, is under way now. It began about the end of August, and is expected to continue until nearly the end of November.

Flights are usually heaviest from 9 to 11 a. m. and from about 2 to 3:30 o'clock p. m.

Rare species have been identified, along with the more common sharp-shin, Coopers, broad-wing, red tail, marsh and sparrow hawk, the osprey, golden eagle and bald eagle, as well as many others.

Until the reservation was set aside as a sanctuary in 1934, through the aggressive efforts of Mrs. Rosalie Edge, head of the New York Emergency Conservation Committee, it had been the practice of bounty-seeking hunters to slaughter thousands of the graceful birds as they flew across the mountain close to the high rocks. Now no shooting is allowed.

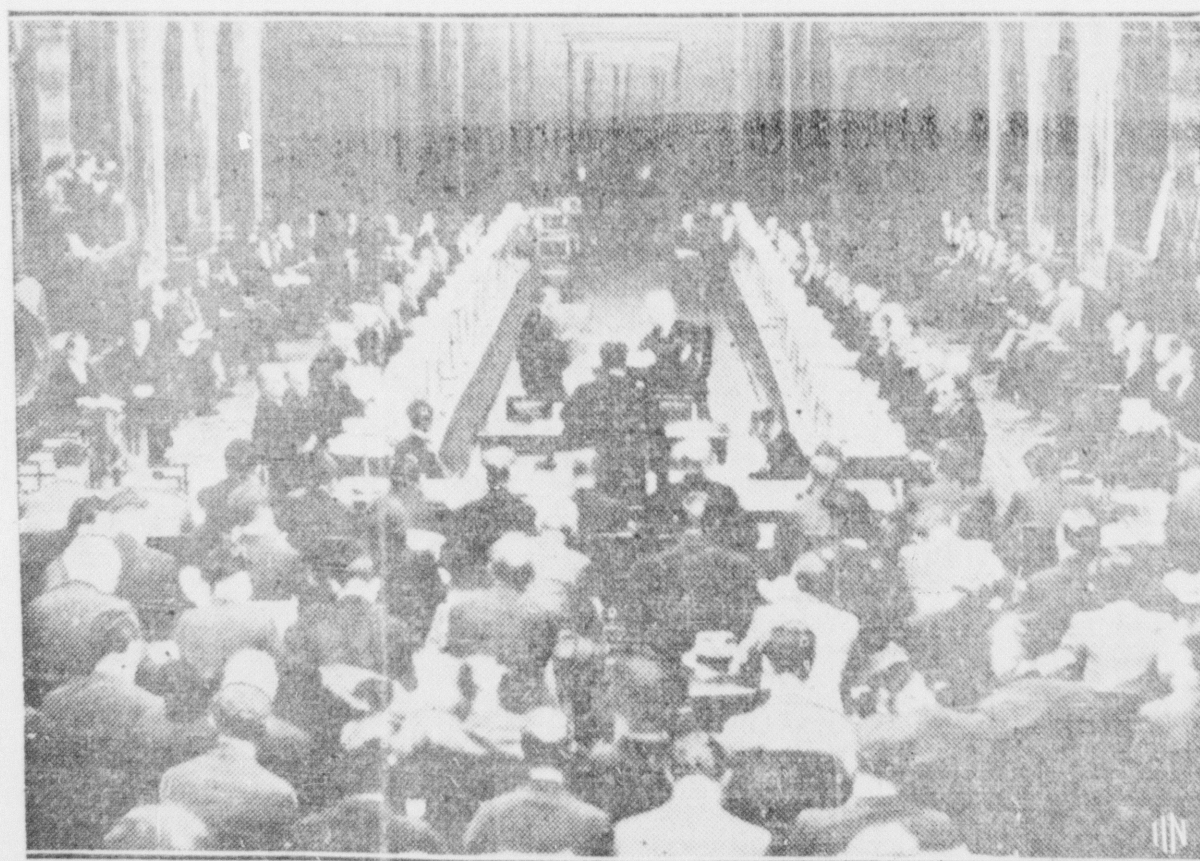

The sanctuary can be reached by automobile from Reading, via U. S. 122 to Hamburg, U. S. 22 to Lenhartsville, then over State route 143 to Albany and left to Eckville, continuing about two miles out to the Hawk Mountain sign on the Dreherstown road.

SEE A LOT IN ONE LOOK

Harrisburg.—Nine counties arrayed in the colorful cloak of autumn can be viewed on clear days from McKees Heights, Montour county, Highway Department officials have reported to the State Publicity Commission.

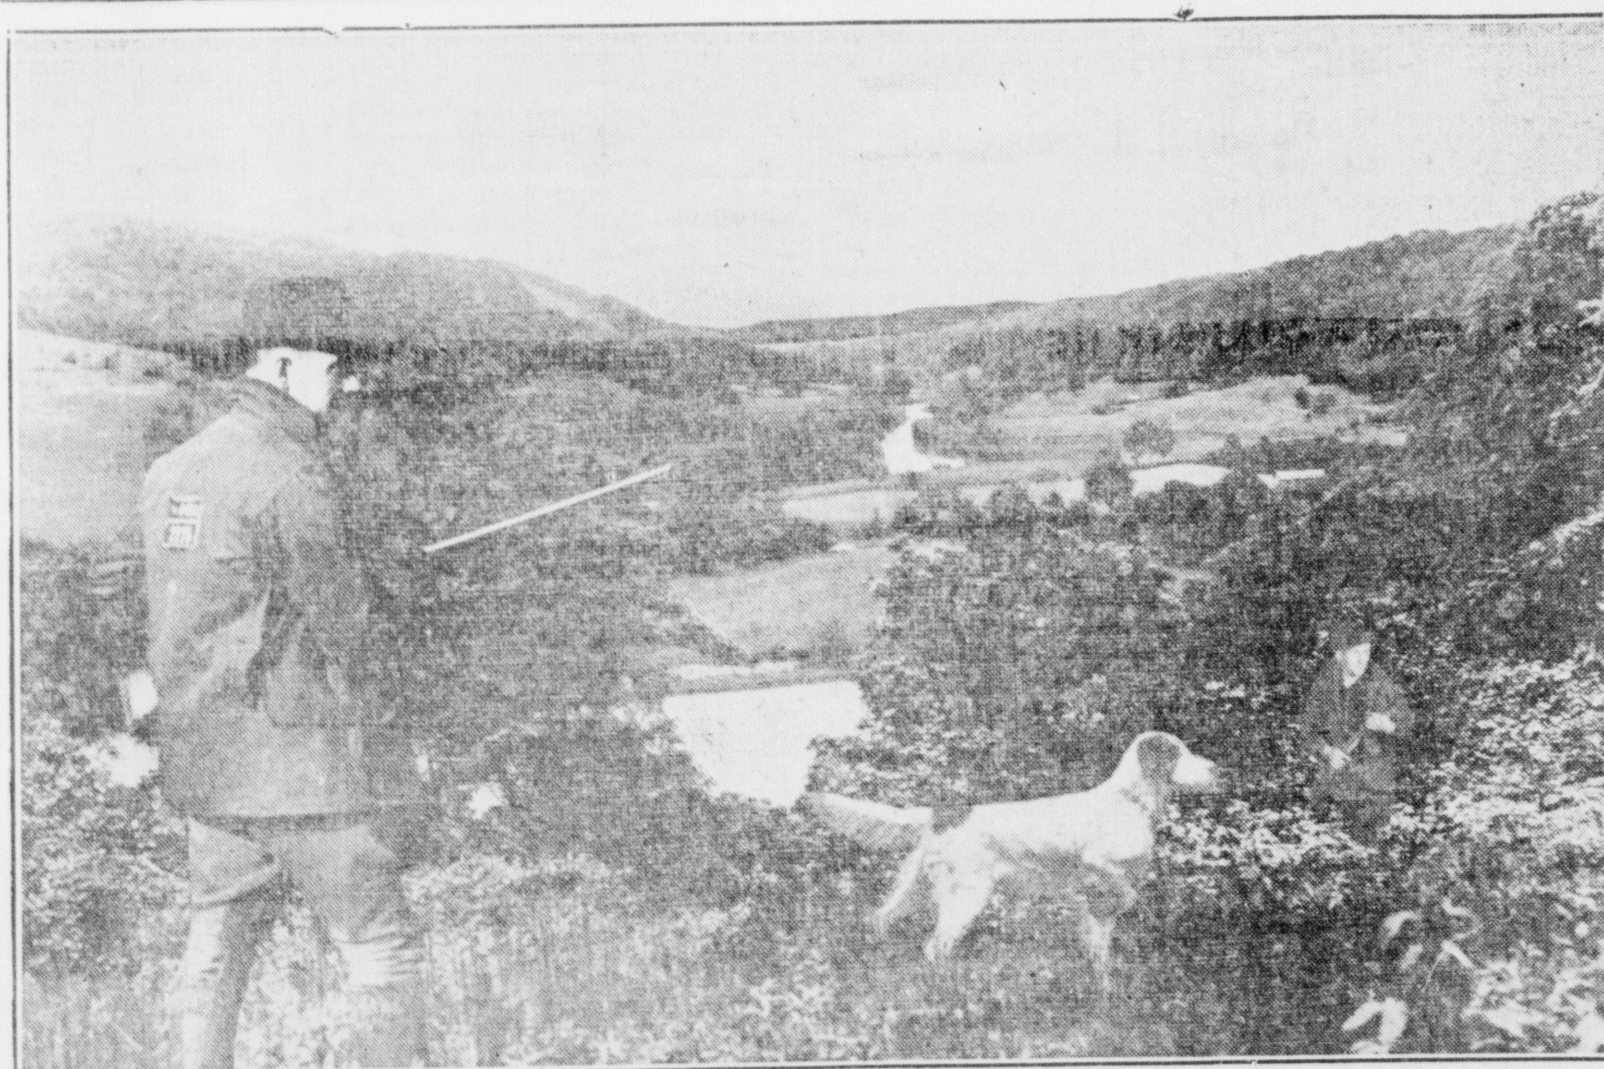

From an elevation of 1240 feet, the visitor to this point gazes out over the counties of Sullivan, Lycoming, Columbia, Northumberland, Snyder, Union, Center, Schuylkill and Montour.

Where the Nine-Power Conference Ponders Peace

This general view shows the delegates of member nations seated in the Palais des Academies at Brussels, Belgium, where they are attempting to formulate a peaceful settlement of the Far-East situation. Since the conference first met, Japanese forces have captured strategic Shanghai and advanced on all fronts.

Just Before a Quail Is Flushed in This Scenic Valley

Freezing in its tracks, a bird dog scents a quail in the underbrush for these alert hunters. A shot ends the whirr of flapping wings. This scene on Aushwick Creek, south of Mt. Union, in Huntingdon County, will be typical of Pennsylvania's woodlands during the small game season which opened November 1.
